Description: The Bonneville Shoreline Trail is a major trail that may someday run the length of the Wasatch Front Foothills. The Bonneville Shoreline Trail stays as close as possible to the high-water mark of ancient Lake Bonneville at about 5200-foot elevation

Access: Take the single track that climbs from the Farmington pond park, up to the firebreak road. Caution, this section of the BST is shared by motorized vehicles. Due to the steepness of the terrain it is unlikely that separate trail will be built for the BST in this area. Take the firebreak road south above Farmington, the first ravine you pass is Rudd Canyon. You will pass intersections with trails to Flag Rock and Patsy's Mine before passing Steed Creek and then Davis Creek. Just to the south of Davis Creek the road comes to an end at Little Valley Rd.

Length: 19.75 miles
Time: 10 hours
Use: hike
